

Dr Neil Miller

CEO TASKey

In 1991, after 21 years in the full-time Army, Neil Miller decided to start a company to create a commercial product to apply the work from his PhD. He started TASKey to develop software products and provide consulting services with a focus on making government and private workplaces more efficient. His distributed management and change management approaches are starting to gain traction. To keep at the leading edge of management methods and tools, he also presents courses for the Australian School of Business AGSM MBA course and runs public and in-house management courses for the ANU Centre for Continuing Education.
