

Dr Joshua Young

Joshua Young is a Canberra-based innovator working in product commercialisation for the first time. He completed a PhD in computational neuroscience in 2009 through research done in Germany and Australia. This work gained considerable interest within his field, leading to the main findings being published in the journal Nature Neuroscience, as well as invitations to speak at various conferences and institutes worldwide.

Triplethink Pty Ltd is an early-stage start up focused on developing and licensing intellectual property in the area of human-computer interfaces. Triplethink has received generous support from the ACT Government's Business and Industry Development program, and benefits greatly from mentoring support provided by the Lighthouse Business Innovation Centre and successful local entrepreneurs.
